The present invention is directed to an apparatus and method for separating trash from recyclable materials and, more particularly, to a trash separator that recovers recyclable materials, such as glass bottles, from trash. The separator has an internal cavity that is divided into several compartments and includes a conveyor belt that is positioned within the cavity. The top of the cavity is defined by a duct having a funnel-shaped outlet aperture and the bottom of the cavity is defined by a removable latching mechanism that latches onto a support stand. Various types of trash separators are known for separating trash and recyclable materials from each other. These separators typically have a housing or trough into which trash and recyclable materials are received. A lifting means is utilized to move the trash and recyclable materials to an opening through which the separator can be emptied. These lifting means may take the form of a conveyor belt that is driven in a direction transverse to the axis of the housing. The lifting means can be raised to cause the trash and recyclable materials to slide out of the housing and drop into a recovery bin. Although the prior art trash separators are useful to separate trash from recyclable materials, they are relatively large and bulky, and thus are difficult to transport from place to place. Further, many of the prior art trash separators include a single structure for lifting trash and recyclable materials into a recovery bin. There is a need in the art for a smaller, more compact trash separator that is capable of recovering recyclable materials from trash and that can be easily transported from place to place.

Q: Integrating Mail.app with Exchange on Mac OS X I'm currently running Mac OS X 10.5.8, Mac OS X Server 10.6.8. I'm also using Mail.app to connect to Exchange. I would like to know if I can configure an MX record so that when someone uses their Exchange email address @example.com, it goes to my Mac, and my iPhone. I have the Exchange settings at my company, like this: @domain1.com mailserver1.company.com @domain2.com mailserver2.company.com @domain3.com mailserver
