Family of the leucine rich repeat (LRR) protein (LRR_K) found in the NBS-LRR protein family is a type of intracellular receptor-like protein. It contains 30 LRR motifs and shares considerable sequence homology with the Toll-like/Interleukin-1 receptor (TLR/IL-1R) family, namely TLR1-9 and IL-1R1-9, and with fungal LRR-encoding genes, which are involved in the activation of immune response. The present study was undertaken in order to identify the ancestral codon and determine the natural variability for two codons (leucine at codon 894 and leucine at codon 896) in LRR_K protein families using the programs of the DS Gene (Disseny's Gene) on the NCBI website and the program of EMBOSS (European Molecular Biology Open Software Suite). The results of this study indicate that, leucine at codon 894 (L8
