===== Fast launch is a small but effective utility that was created in order to provide you with a simple means of enriching the context menu by adding various shortcuts to programs and system features. All you have to do is write a title for the shortcut and then set the program path to the executable that will be launched. Optionally, you can set a custom logo (icon) for each item you add to the context menu. KITTY 0.75 beta (0.75.0-rc2) was released today. This is a mainly bugfix release with a few new features (including Inverted-Mode, a user-configurable keyboard layout and more) thrown in for good measure. If you are using a Korean keyboard, you may want to download this beta release. If you are not using a Korean keyboard, you should not download this release. Got a question about the 12.10 beta? Visit the #ubuntu-release-party channel on Freenode and chat with us! You can also find us on the web at: and if you're looking for help, you can post in our IRC IRC also at: #ubuntu. REQUIRED SKILLS Know how to package Python applications Understanding of the Python packaging tools Experience with developing Python scripts Knowledge of the PyGTK, PyGObject, PyPOT, and Dbus API's Knowledge of Vte (needed for GEdit support) Knowledge of GTK (needed for GEdit support) FAST LOAD INITIATIVE FAST is a project that aims to provide a desktop experience akin to the ARM builders that were used on the Beagle Board. Ideally, FAST would support the python3 programming language, the cmal/cmal_gui and wifibrew environments. A graphical installer would be needed to transfer the programs and data to the users hard disk. Hi all: I'm hoping to start a friendly discussion about the MOTD changes in 12.10. While I like the new functionality in the MOTD, I'm disappointed that the "canned" messages provided by the installer are now displayed. This means that after a bug on the installer caused the "canned" MOTD messages to be displayed on the first upgrade, I will not be able to detect any new bugs before using the disk. While MOTD

Open-ended questions tend to be the most common; however, sometimes your question may be too detailed to be answered without more information. Here are some general questions you may ask during an interview: Will your program be free to use? If it is open source, will the other developers be able to reuse the code for their own purposes? Is the program open-ended? Can the user modify the program's code to meet their needs? If the program is intended to be used by a single individual, how much customization is allowed? Is the program intended for individual use or use within a business? Is the program intended for a customer to use or a professional to customize? If the program is intended for individual use, can the user distribute their own copies of the program? If the software is distributed via an Internet-based service, what rights will the user have when modifying or distributing their copy? How much does the program cost? An open-ended question might be "do you plan to charge customers for the program?"
