A: Since there is no tag criterion for that tag, that could get misused. So please remove all entries that are tagged this way, if you do not agree with it. Since you tagged your question "crack" it also looks like you are looking for a crack. Your questions should be tagged for that purpose. A multidisciplinary medical management strategy for the core and borderland regions of Mexico: the case of Baja California. The rationale and organization of a comprehensive public health program for Baja California State, Mexico, is described in this article. The program is based on the principles of a multidisciplinary system of health services and public health. The health services network encompasses primary care and preventive medical services and hospitalization, as well as tertiary and quaternary preventive and curative medical care. The public health program promotes health and prevents health problems by establishing a network of basic health care facilities in the core and borderland regions. Under the auspices of the public health system, the program provides a standardized care package that has been developed and validated through a comprehensive evaluation of the problems being targeted, and that is based on a cost-benefit analysis. The system of public health care in Baja California is one of the new programs being offered in Mexico and to date, no similar system has been developed in other states of the republic. Human Respiratory syncytial virus (hRSV) is the leading cause of severe lower respiratory tract infection in children. Only two drugs have been approved to date for the treatment of hRSV infections (synagis® and palivizumab). However, both of these drugs have significant limitations, and neither is approved in all markets, and the safety profile of both requires careful monitoring. There is no antiviral drug for the treatment of established hRSV infection in infants and young children. In this application we propose to test a novel anti-hRSV therapeutic strategy in an already Phase 1 clinical trial. This approach is predicated on results from our laboratory that have identified the heparan sulfate-like glycan (HS-LG) as a specific receptor for hRSV. In the studies
