this game is all about extreme driving and outrageous crashes. no triumphs or punishments - just the thing to make you get a blood pressure. burnout paradise combines real-life driving with the action and excitement that only a racing game can provide. burnout paradise is a satisfying experience because the racing element is outstanding and the driving environment is truly unique. you should definitely check it out! burnout paradise: the ultimate box is a racing video game developed by criterion games and published by ea for the playstation 3 and xbox 360. it is the sequel to burnout 3: takedown, and the ninth game in the burnout series. the primary goal in the game is to race your way through a variety of races, with the usual things in mind like the burnout 3-style physics. the main challenge for the game is its large city, "paradise city," which contains all sorts of different locations, cars, and roads, each of which need to be driven and explored. the game's story revolves around the events that took place in the first game, which is now two years on. burnout paradise has been compared to the grand theft auto series because of the open world, but it does not follow the same formula. if you are a fan of the burnout series, then you will definitely want to buy burnout paradise: the ultimate box on your playstation 3 or xbox 360. the game looks just like the first burnout game and it is even more awesome because you can race at night. all the races in paradise city are over fictional locations, so you have the option of doing them in one of seven locations. the city features a number of different landmarks, such as the burnout paradise speedway and the burnout paradise surf ballad.

paradise city is different from the previous locations in burnout. as you drive through the city, you'll discover three different classifications of roads. the first is the nickel and dime road, which has limited lanes and the shortest amount of time to complete a race. the second is the jail road, which has 10 lanes and long stretches of time to complete a race. finally, there's the super highway, which has 24 lanes and the longest amount of time to complete a race.

eurogamer's verdict: burnout paradise is the most fun ive had with a game in a long time. it doesnt really change too much in terms of the gameplay, but it does change the way you play the game. youre still cruising around, but there are more opportunities to screw up. you can now ram into pedestrians or into walls for no reason whatsoever. you can also flame people. theres no such thing as bad racing, as youll find out for yourself. paradise city is an amazing game world. im all in favour of adding to the formula, but ive never heard of a racer that felt more like i was in a movie. its like burnouts formula one. its not so much a sequel as it is an evolution. the racing action is as intense as ever, but paradise city has some great new features and a different feel to it. this is a racer with quite a bit of depth and variety, giving the cars a great feeling of weight and power. while paradise city is a bit of a departure from burnout 3, its more or less a direct continuation of burnout 3 and the burnout paradise: track stars. the various missions and activities have been tailored to the cars, and the time of day and weather conditions are a welcome change. paradise city is a refreshing addition to the burnout series and provides some new and varied gameplay features, not to mention a few more hours of racing fun.
